NEW TARIFF MEASURE IS NOW LAW OF THE LAND

MARGARETHA RISCHEN

Four-Year-Old Austrian Girl Who Crossed the Sea Alone.

"Please take care of me. I am going to my mamma. Please do not kiss me." This notice written in several languages on a small card attached to her pinafore was Miss Margaretha Rischen's sole protection when she arrived at Ellis island from her home in Vienna. Margaretha is four years old and is traveling alone. She is on her way to Kenwood, Cal., where her mother is living now that her father is dead. She crossed the sea in safety and had $5 when she arrived in New York. She will continue her journey across the American continent alone.

LIE OUT SOMEWHERE

New York, Oct. 4.—The case against young Herman Oelrichs, in which he was accused of feloniously stabbing Miss Lucille Singleton as the culmination of an automobile ride about town, blew up. Miss Singleton made a statement to Assistant District Attorney James O'Malley that Oelrichs had been with her in the auto last Tuesday night when she was injured, but that he had not stabbed her; in fact, she had not been stabbed at all.

CARGOULD WITNESS IN BURGLARY CASE

RULING IN MEEKISON CASE

Referendum Petitions Not Filed Held To Be Property.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 4.—After failing to obtain a directed verdict of not guilty, J. D. Cargould, an Akron politician, charged with attempting to steal referendum petitions from the Ohio Equity association offices, was put on the stand by attorneys for the defense.

Cargould said he was introduced to Meekison by C. I. Gongwer, secretary of the association. He testified that Meekison had given him a key which Meekison said would open the Equity association offices. He tried the key, he said, and it did fit the lock on the door.

Attorney Boyd examined J. H. Cronin, a foreman in a rubber plant at Akron. It developed that he was the mysterious third man who accompanied Meekison and Cargould to the offices of the Equity association on the night of Aug. 2. Cronin denied all knowledge of burglary.

In refusing to free C. C. Meekison, auditor of Henry county, and Cargould, Judge Leighley ruled that, in his opinion, referendum petitions are not property, but that, inasmuch as the ones in question had not been filed, they were not technically petitions and therefore should be regarded as property, and an attempted theft of them could be prosecuted.

SAYS TASK ONLY HALF COMPLETED

Wilson Signs Tariff Bill and Makes Remarkable Speech.

REFERS TO CURRENCY MEASURE

Declares Its Enactment Will Be the Final Step in Setting the Business of This Country Free — Immensely Pleased With Passage of Tariff Bill and Says There's Glory Enough to Go Around.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The Democratic tariff revision bill, the second low-tariff law that has been put on the statute books in 75 years, is now a reality. President Wilson signed his name to the Underwood-Simmons bill last evening in the presence of an impressive gathering. Two hours and fifty minutes later, at midnight, the new law went into effect, with the exception of a few items.

The signing of the new tariff law took place in the president's office. At 9 o'clock those whom the president invited to witness it passed through the door of the office. The president, wearing a black winter coat, shook hands heartily with each person as he entered.

Those present included Majority Leader Underwood, who had supervised the drafting of the bill and managed the fight to put it through the house; Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who had performed the same task in the senate; the members of the president's cabinet and their assistants; the ways and means committee of the house, the finance committee of the senate, Senator Kern, Democratic leader of the senate; the president's brother, Joseph L. Wilson of Tennessee, and a number of especially invited guests.

Urges Currency Legislation. After signing the bill the president spoke as follows:

"I have had the accomplishment of something like this at heart ever since I was a boy, and I know men standing around me who can say the same thing—who have been waiting to see the things done which it was necessary to do in order that there might be justice in the United States. And so it is a solemn moment that brings such a business to a conclusion, and I hope I will not be thought to be demanding too much of myself or of my colleagues when I say that this, great as it is, is the accomplishment of only half the journey. We have set the business of this country free from those conditions which have made monopoly not only possible, but in a sense easy and natural. But there is no use taking away the conditions of monopoly if we do not take away also the power to create monopoly; and that is a financial, rather than a merely circumstantial and economic power. The power to control and guide and direct the credits of the country is the power to say who shall and who shall not build up the industries of the country.

"We are now about to take the second step, which will be the final step in setting the business of this country free. That is what we shall do in the currency bill, which the house has already passed and which I have the utmost confidence the senate will pass much sooner than some pessimistic individuals believe.

"I was quoting the other day to some of my colleagues in the senate these lines from Shakespeare's Henry V which have always appealed to me, 'If it be a sin to covet honor, then I am the most offending soul alive,' and I am happy to say that I do not covet it for myself alone. I covet it with equal ardor for the men who are associated with me, and the honor is going to come from them. I am their associate. I can only complete the work which they do."

LONG LIST OF CRIME FOUND

MONTANA RANCHER IS DOUBLE-CROSSED

Wife Remarries When She Collects Insurance Money.

New York, Oct. 4.—Arthur P. Hughes, a rancher of Forsythe, Rosebud county, Montana, who was at one time believed to be dead, was arrested in a Park Row saloon on charges of grave-robbing, arson and conspiracy to defraud a life insurance company in his native state. He is accused of having stolen the corpse of a neighboring rancher named Craig, placed it in his house, set fire to the house with the assistance of his wife, and then disappeared to let her collect $2,000 insurance on the ground that the charred remains were his own.

The information which led to his arrest came from his wife, who is under two indictments herself. After Hughes had disappeared she is said to have married a farmhand named William Elliott, who is also implicated in the case. This marriage led to an investigation by the Montana Life Insurance company and she and Elliott were indicted for her husband's murder. Later, however, the fact that he was alive was disclosed to Sheriff William Moses of Rosebud county, and the other indictments against Hughes and his wife followed.

ALASKAN JUDGE LET OUT

Attorney General Asks For and Receives Resignation.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Attorney General McReynolds has demanded and received the resignation of United States District Judge C. D. Murane of Alaska, to take effect immediately. It was said at the department of justice that this action had been taken "for the good of the service," and no details as to Mr. McReynolds' dissatisfaction with Judge Murane could be secured.

M'INTYRE STRUCK BY HOT MISSOURIAN

SLAPPED HIS FACE

Senator Said to Have Attacked an N. A. M. Representative.

Washington, Oct. 4.—There was a row in the judiciary committee room of the senate, an echo of the recent Mallory hearings, in which Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, taking the offensive, is said to have slapped the face of John McIntyre of Philadelphia, a prominent member of the National Association of Manufacturers. According to McIntyre's version as he gave it to friends he got much the worst of the encounter. The blow, descending upon his brow, smashed his eyeglasses, raised a fine blue lump over his eye and the broken frame of the spectacles cut a gash over his cheekbone.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Roger C. Sullivan, the Democratic lion of Illinois, will formally announce his candidacy for United States senator at the state fair at Springfield next week. "During the long years I have been in politics, I have been approached by hordes of men who said they were Sullivan Democrats," said he. "They always wanted something to run for office or get a job. Now I think I'll find out just how many of them actually were Sullivan Democrats." Sullivan is said to have disposed of his interests in public utilities companies and at present is a manufacturer of biscuits.

HELD FOR MURDER

Pittsboro, O., Oct. 4.—William Clifford, a cement contractor, is held by the police for the death of Howard Moore, 35, laborer, who died in the city prison. Police officers arrested Moore on a supposed charge of intoxication. He claimed Clifford had struck him. An hour later Moore was found dead in his cell. Clifford denies knowledge of the affair.

ROOSEVELT TALKS TO PROGRESSIVES

Makes Veiled Attack on Wilson's Mexican Policy.

ALSO CRITICISES TAFT REGIME

Declares That the National Policy Must Rest Not Only On Good Intentions and Sincerity, but Also On Strength—Makes Characteristic Address Before Thousands of His Admirers—His Mission in South.

New York, Oct. 4.—Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, speaking at a great gathering of Progressives, who met on the New York roof garden to break bread with the colonel and wish him godspeed on his South American trip, had a strong word for his followers and a veiled word of criticism for President Wilson's Mexican policy.

The reference to the administration's general foreign policy came after Roosevelt had told of the purpose of his coming visit to Brazil, the Argentine and Chile, where he goes, he said, "because the three great democracies wished to hear my views on democracy. He said that the national policy must rest 'not only on good intentions and sincerity, but also on strength.'"

As an example the colonel cited his own action with regard to San Domingo. He continued:

WANT BIBLE READ IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Methodists of Ohio Inaugurate a Campaign.

Chillicothe, O., Oct. 4.—Methodists of Ohio have started on a campaign to have a law enacted by the state legislature requiring all public school teachers of the state to read to the pupils at least 10 verses from the Bible each morning at the opening of school. A resolution of this kind was passed by the west Ohio conference a few weeks ago.

Rev. J. C. Jackson of London read a similar resolution to the Ohio Methodist conference, which was unanimously adopted, and Bishop Anderson was directed to appoint a committee whose duty it shall be to wait upon organizations throughout the state and induce them, if possible, to adopt like resolutions, and all work for the passage of a bill requiring the reading of the Bible in the public schools.

A strong plea was made by Dr. Weakley, president of the Methodist Home for the Aged, Cincinnati, for the support of that institution. He said that now 5,000 old Methodists are knocking for admission to the home.

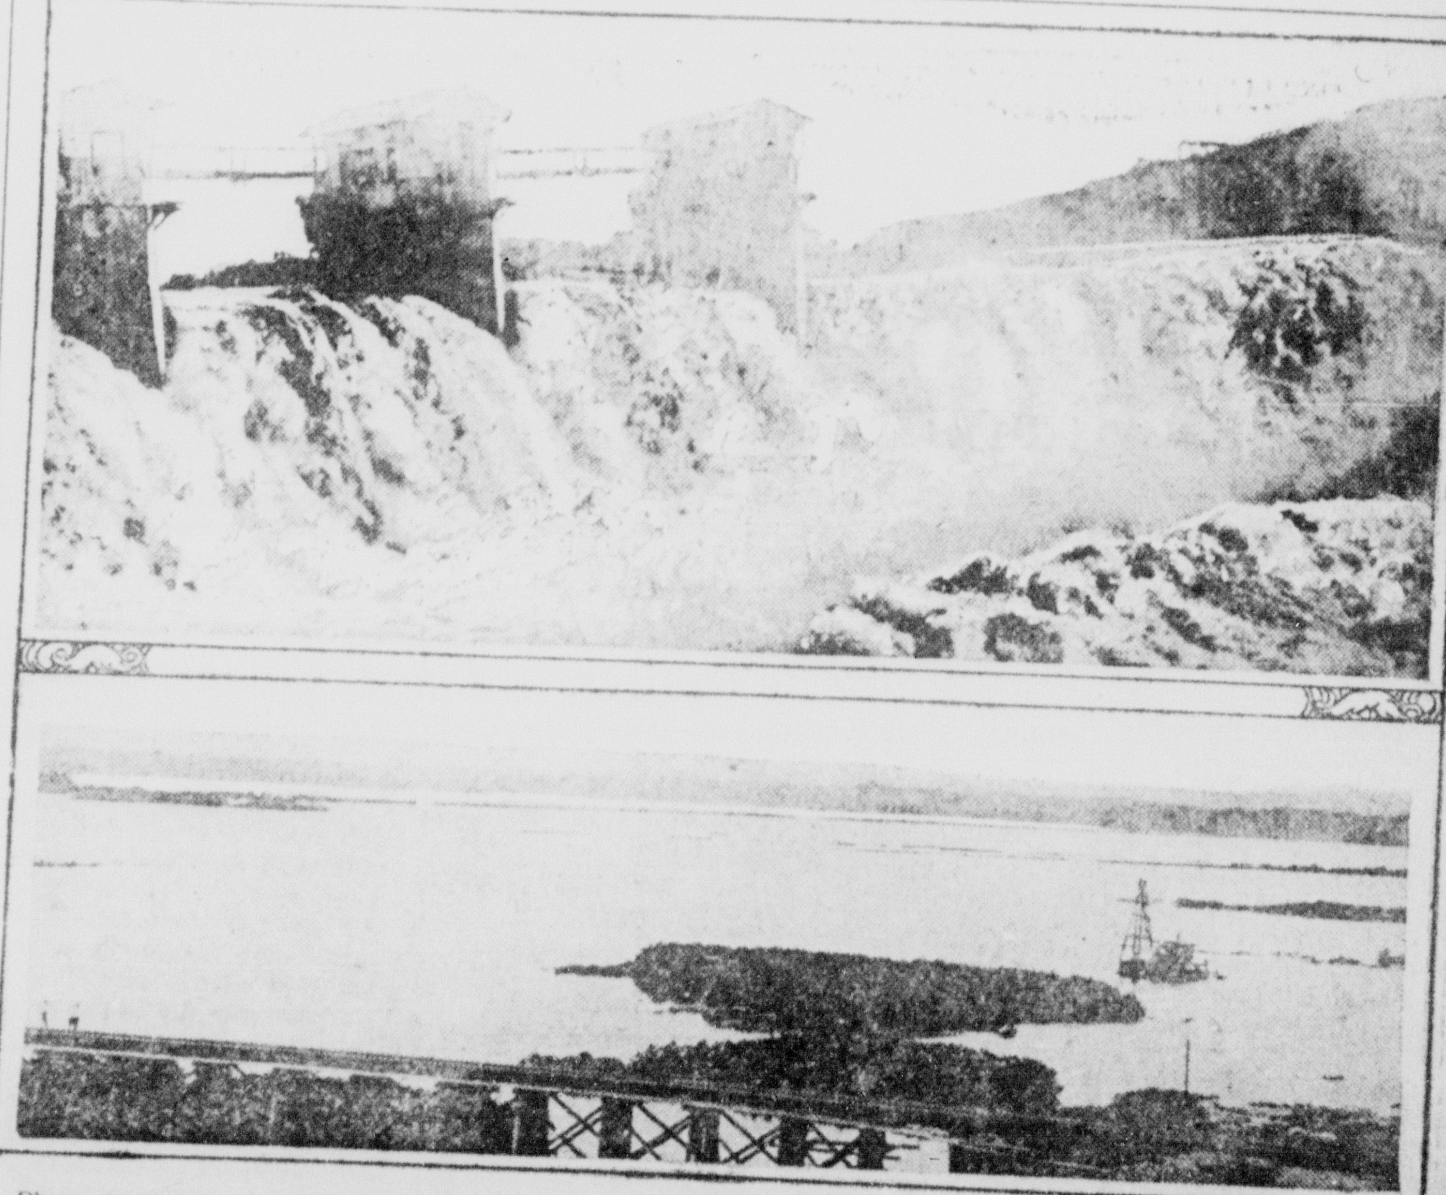

A BRAVE HUBBY

Durham, O., Oct. 4.—Claiming that his wife had refused to converse with him for five years past, although the two occupy the same home, Jacob Hutzel asked for a divorce. They sit at different tables during the meal hour.

Want Argentine Corn.

Topeka, Kan.—Kansas farmers and stockmen, owing to the bad effect of the drought upon the corn crop, will ask the removal of the tariff duty on Argentine corn so it may be imported and fed to Kansas stock. It is estimated that Argentine grain can be delivered to the Kansas farmers at about 10 cents a bushel less than the present price of corn in the state.

With the dynamiting of the last restraining dike in the Panama canal on Oct. 10 Culebra cut becomes flooded and the Atlantic and Pacific oceans actually connected. After the rocks and debris from the slides have been dredged from the cut the canal will be completed and ready for the first formal passage of the old battleship Oregon. These pictures show the spillway of the great Gatun locks on the Pacific end of the canal and a portion of the canal at the Atlantic entrance which is ready for service.

CARRIES BULLET ABOUT IN BRAIN MANY MONTHS

Expert Operates To Save Lad's Life

Little Frank Rowan, Who Was Shot in Head When Revolver Accidentally Exploded Seven Months Ago is Now in Chicago Hospital.

RALLIES FROM SERIOUS OPERATION JUST PERFORMED.

Remarkable Case Attracts Wide Attention Among Medical Profession
—Trepanning Necessary Will be Done Within Next Two Weeks, and 32-Caliber Ball Will be Removed From Base of the Brain.

After carrying a 32-caliber bullet in his brain for nearly seven months, Frank Rowan, 13-year-old son of Mrs. J. E. Rowan, of South Fayette street, is now in the Frances Willard hospital, Chicago, where he has just undergone an operation at the hands of Dr. C. C. Rogers, the famous brain expert, but a second operation will be necessary before the bullet is removed from its resting place at the base of the brain at the back part of the head.

He was taken to the Hodson hospital and after lingering between life and death for some time was removed to his home, gradually recovering his strength.

The bullet carried in his brain did not trouble him until recently, when he suffered convulsions, and plans were at once made to send the lad to the Frances Willard hospital to undergo an operation in an effort to save his life and remove the bullet.

He was accordingly taken to the hospital by his mother, and the operation was performed this week.

An incision was made at the point where the ball penetrated and it was discovered that the membrane covering the brain had grown fast to the outer skin and ragged edges of the bone, and that a small piece of bone projected into the brain matter. It was this that had caused the convulsions, and not the bullet itself as had been feared.

A section of bone about as large as a dollar was removed about the place where the ball had penetrated over the right eye, and also a small piece of the membrane covering the brain.
The section of membrane, about as large as a quarter, was replaced with a section taken from the lad's hip.

of Dr. C. C. Rogers, the famous brain
expert, but a second operation will
be necessary before the bullet is removed from its resting place at the base of the brain at the back part of
the head.

The lad was wounded last March while trying to extract the cartridges from a 32 caliber revolver which he had found about the house, the gun exploded and the ball penetrating his head just above the right eye. The

LAWRENCE HANNA FUNERAL TOMORROW

Saturday afternoon the remains of Lawrence Hanna, the young man who was instantly killed by a falling tree while cutting timber near Sabina Friday morning, were taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. N.
Hanna, six miles north of Bloom-burg, and will be left with the grief-stricken parents until Sunday afternoon, when funeral services will be held at the M. E. church in Bloom-burg, followed by interment in the Bloomburg cemetery.

The untimely death of the young man has cast a deep gloom over his many friends throughout the county.
Companions who were with him
when the fatal accident occurred state that he never spoke and after the tree struck him, he was crushed to the earth and died there, until the terror-stricken companions could saw the trunk of the tree in twain and roll the heavy log off of his dead body.

BELIEVE PENNSY WILL GET D. T. & I.

It is the general talk in railroad circles that the Pennsylvania railroad has everything in readiness to take over the D. T. & I. when final disposition of the road is made in the near future, and one eminent authority from Cincinnati has expressed himself as being of the opinion that the acquisition of the D. T. & I. by the Pennsylvania is very near at hand.

It has developed that the secret special train over the road this week bore First vice President Wood of the Pennsylvania system.

The Pennsylvania has also been taking options in the vicinity of the D. T. & I. freight yards in Detroit and at other points it is alleged with a view to making extensions just as soon as the road is in their hands.

It is believed that the big system is after that portion of the road between Detroit and Lima or Springfield, and that the N. & W. is after the southern division.

NEW CORN WILL START AT 50 CENTS

Corn husking is expected to open up within the next few days, and the annual marketing of the grain will again keep the elevators in the county running almost to capacity for several weeks until Fayette's big crop or that part to be marketed this fall, is safely under roof.

The starting price will probably be 50c per bushel, which is 10c more on the bushel than paid last year.

It is expected that after the corn becomes thoroughly cured the price will make a decided jump as old corn is now selling at 70 and 72 cents per bushel.

As the crop is several hundred million bushels short this season, the price of corn is expected to soar dollarward before the next crop is harvested, unless Argentina's crop is sufficient to supply the demands in the United States.

ell Harriman, the youngest director of the great railroad system which his father developed from a bankrupt property to one of the most profitable prised to learn that Wall street had placed on his shoulders the task of deciding what shall be done with the $81,000,000 which the Union Pacific received from the sale of $88,000,000 of Southern Pacific stock offered to the Union Pacific stockholders at 92.

He said he was not going to lose any

Beauty of Inequality.

The beauty as well as the happiness of the universe requires inequality.
Equal lines, smooth surfaces and eternal plains have no beauty. We must have hill and dale, mountain and valley, sea and land, suns of all magnitudes, worlds of all sizes, minds of all dimensions and persons and faces of divers casts and colors to constitute a beautiful and happy world. We must have sexes, conditions and families
—diversities in person, mind, manners.
In order to the communication and reception of happiness, hence our numerous and various wants are not only incentives to action, but sources of pleasure, both simple and complex—physical, intellectual and moral.—Alex-

WASHINGTON LODGE OF ELKS HOLDS FIRST MEETING IN NEW ELEGANTLY FURNISHED PARLORS

Initial Meeting in New Home is One of More Than Average Importance and New Members are Initiated.

LARGE ATTENDANCE OF THE ANTLERED HERD

After Nearly Two Years in Cramped Quarters, Due to Burning of Home in Masonic Temple December 30, 1911, the Elks are Established in One of the Most Attractive Lodge Homes in Central Ohio.

Once more the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks No. 129, is established in its own home and the inconveniences of the past two years, following the destruction of their handsome club rooms in the Masonic Temple, will soon be forgotten.

On Friday night the new home was thrown open to the local lodge as well as to a number of visitors from neighboring lodges, for the opening session and the evening proved a notable occasion in its double interest of the inspection of new quarters and a jolly stag affair.

Seventy-five of the antlered herd were present and enthusiasm rose to high water-mark as the elegant club rooms were viewed for the first time by their completeness.

The new quarters occupy the entire second floor of the new Hunt building on South Main street. The arrangement is ideal for club purposes. A spacious reception room or lobby in the center is flanked on one side by a splendid billiard and card room, overlooking Main street, and on the other side by a very large room for either reception or lodge purposes, with ladies' dressing room and property quarters in the rear. From this reception room opens the immense ballroom with stage at one end providing for entertainment purposes if desired.

A kitchen, fully equipped with cabinet, tables and all necessary furniture, completes the suite.

Two features especially commend themselves, one the exceptionally large fire escape, two doors opening on it, and the other the solid concrete floor beneath.

The club rooms are very handsomely furnished in mahogany and a decorative color scheme of buff and old ivory in the walls and ceilings blends with soft greens and tans in the rugs to effect a most harmonious combination. The ceilings are of steel artistically paneled and decorated, the panels studded with electric lights.

The entire impression of the club rooms is one of luxury and taste. The huge mahogany davenports, upholstered in leather, and big chairs to match, invite the club man to a comfortable lounge. The rugs are Royal Wilton and large and small, match throughout the suite.

During the business session two new members, Stanley Hagerty and Frank D. Woodland, were taken into the lodge.

A buffet luncheon, showing the culinary skill of three of the Elks, Messrs. John Culhan, H. T. Baker and Carl Mallow, and a merry social session wound up the first night.

The social session committee is arranging for a series of dances and ladies' social sessions during the winter, to which the Elks former prestige as entertainers will lend anticipation.

RURAL CARRIERS MAKE ANNUAL COUNT

The rural mail carriers of the Washington postoffice are now busily engaged each morning before leaving on their daily journey, counting, classifying and weighing every piece of mail that passes through their hands, and as a consequence their office work is more than doubled.

The count commenced this week and will continue for 60 days, during which time every piece of mail will be weighed and counted in its class.

In this manner the postoffice department is able to ascertain the growth of the service in each postoffice and make provisions accordingly.

In the local postoffice the increase is expected to be very noticeable on account of the parcel post, which is gradually increasing in volume.

Within the next few years some radical changes are expected in connection with the rural delivery, and motor power will probably be used exclusively by the local carriers.

Under An Englishman's Observation

The impressions of an Englishman recently returning to his home from a visit to the United States in regard to "Religious America", will be read with considerable interest by both the religious and the non-religious.

It is always of interest to see ourselves reflected in the mirror of other people's views and the reader is pretty sure to be guaranteed a new sensation, whether that of the tepid bath or the icy plunge.

The English writer protects himself at the outset by saying that "no writer will dogmatize hastily about such a matter as religious life in America because the size of the country must be taken into account. In passing from one state to another differences in the population are so striking that they would seem to indicate the presence of another race."

In speaking of his various conversations while crossing the ocean he relates that one woman assured him that "American men never went to church," while an Episcopal clergyman of Philadelphia emphatically denied this statement and claimed that "Religion is still the most powerful agency in American life."

The writer finally draws his conclusions, saying, "Christianity in America is divided into two camps—the one is orthodox. Its orthodoxy is apt to degenerate into the senile attachment to the letter of the scripture. I heard one man of this school say that he never read anything but the Bible, and he thanked God for being able to confine his attention to the one book. There is a lack of mental breadth, of intellectual enlightenment about the members of this school which is a little disheartening.

The other school seems to have sacrificed almost everything which makes Christianity distinct from a temporary philosophy.

Attending Trinity church in Boston, Phillips Brooks' church, he carries away this impression of a present-day sermon, "the sermon that I heard was strangely suggestive, for the preacher indicated plainly enough that sense of disappointment with the civilization of this great land which is felt and expressed by the best and bravest men of the time. He sees that Carlyle's prophecy is coming true.

Here in the new world, the problems which the old world has known for so long are being discovered once more. Poverty by the side of wealth, a justifiable disbelief in the honesty and disinterestedness of those who make the laws, a consequent anarchy which has its real roots in the immoral nihilism of the rich and powerful.

America has for many years enjoyed the fruits of civilization and freedom. Secular education has had its way. The school teachers have been abroad in the land for decades, and the result is that America literally cries aloud for the justice, the pity, the love of man for man, which find their most glorious expression in the cross of Christ.

The Englishman's summary offers food for thought as does also his statement that "side by side with the remarkable energy and zest of living with which the American confronts life, I find a corresponding deficiency in the absence of the spirit of brooding and contemplative leisure."

Poetry For Today

HIS NIGHT OF REST.
He lay upon his rumpled bed,
His eye was drowsy, dim;
He tossed and turned his weary head—
No sleep could come to him.
Because—
A phonograph buzzed out a loud and nasal tenor song;
A motor throbbed and thumped as if to jolt the tune along;
An automatic player pounded through a rattling waltz;
A soprano with a top-note tried to pierce the starry vaults;
A trolley flat wheel barked along its intermittent way.
Just stopping when a screeching brake made hideously its play;
A stationary "copper" to a sympathetic friend
Unrolled his sorrows in a basso grumble without end;
A party of joy-riders tanked with super-gasoline Proclaimed to a reluctant world how fast and far they'd been;
A tugboat whistle, rising to a nerve-destroying howl,
Found its echo in a Thomas cat's crescendic battle yowl,
And every other kind of noise that could a silence break
Defied the dark to keep that would-be sleeper wide-awake
All hushed as morning broke o'er-head,
A napping hour sure,
Alas! the men of milk and bread
Began their daily tour!

SASSY SOCIALISTS FARE ILL

Court Makes a Number of Belligerent Defendants Gasp When He Remits Fines and Sentences—Change of Attitude Follows Consultation With Representative of Eight Other Superior Judges.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 4.—Superior Judge John E. Humphries, who began proceedings in a belligerent mood, with his docket full of contempt of court cases against Socialists, adjourned court after dispensing pardons and remissions to all comers. His change of attitude came after a consultation with a representative of eight other superior judges.

Until the middle of the session Judge Humphries continued to hear the cases of the 55 signers of a "defiance" act, making frequent addresses to the crowd. In the beginning the penalties imposed were severe, later mild. The court frequently warned the defendants not to be "sassy." Those who were "sassy" fared ill.

After the "defiant" persons had been disposed of the case of Dr. Titus, on the charge of violating an anti-street-speaking injunction, was called. The judge delivered a long address and then discharged Dr. Titus, to the latter's astonishment.

When Millard Price came forward the judge greeted him with a smile, saying, "Another friend of mine." Price answered a few questions and was discharged.

Kate Sadler, a street speaker, was brought from the county jail, where she had been confined for interrupting the court proceedings. Questioned by Judge Humphries, she declared she had not assailed him in her speeches, but, on the contrary, had praised him as an object lesson of the need of recall of judges. To her amazement the court said he would reduce her $100 fine to $10. "I'll not pay it," she shouted.

"Don't get sassy," said the judge, adding, "The fine is remitted anyhow."

"What became of the women with the two babies," the court asked next. The judge was told that Mrs. McNally would be released from jail. The judge then inquired about Mrs. Spencer, a woman with four children, and remitted the fine against her. The prosecutor objected, saying "She was very defiant, your honor."

At the close of court the principals of the Socialist contempt cases were free and more than a score of persons were in jail in default of payment of fines varying from $5 to $200 for "talking back to the court." Three of the latter had been sentenced to six months each in prison. Five women are in jail for nonpayment of $100 fines.

Science Shows That Personality Persists Beyond Bodily Death

By Sir OLIVER LODGE, English Scientist

A MARKED feature of the present scientific era is the discovery of and interest in various kinds of atomism, so that CONTINUITY SEEMS IN DANGER OF BEING LOST SIGHT OF.

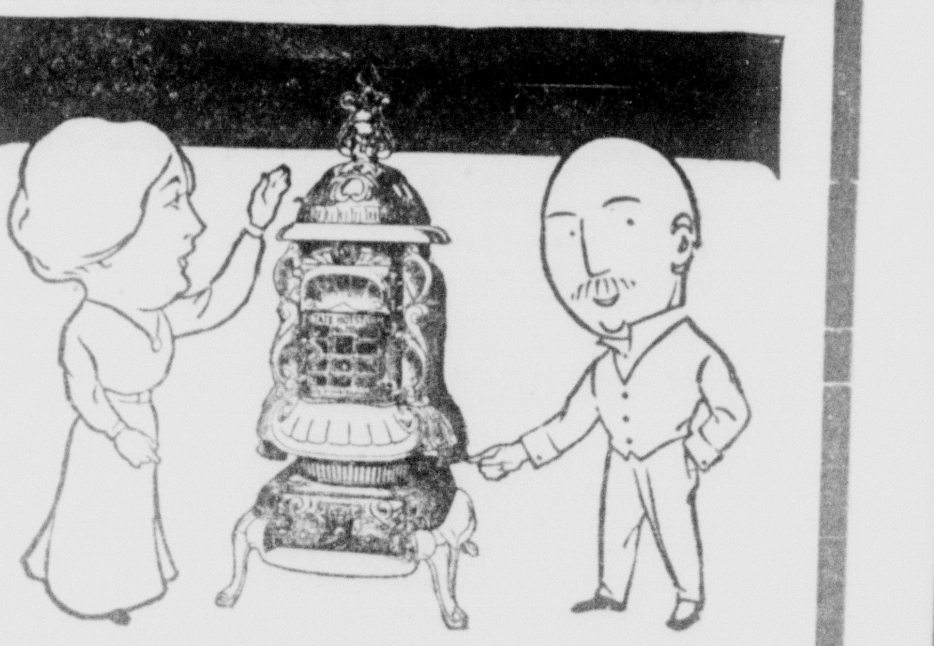

Another tendency is toward comprehensive negative generalizations from a limited point of view.

Another is to take refuge in rather vague forms of statement and to shrink from closer examination of the puzzling and the obscure.

Another is to DENY THE EXISTENCE of anything which makes no appeal to organs of sense and no ready response to laboratory experiment.

Against these tendencies the author contends. He urges a belief in ultimate continuity as essential to science, he regards scientific concentration as an inadequate basis for philosophic generalization, he believes that obscure phenomena may be expressed simply if properly faced, and he points out that the nonappearance of anything perfectly uniform and omnipresent is only WHAT SHOULD BE EXPECTED and is no argument against its real substantial existence.

OCCURRENCES NOW REGARDED AS OCCULT CAN BE EXAMINED AND REDUCED TO ORDER BY THE METHODS OF SCIENCE CAREFULLY AND PERSISTENTLY APPLIED. ALREADY THE FACTS SO EXAMINED HAVE CONVINCED ME THAT MEMORY AND AFFECTION ARE NOT LIMITED TO THAT ASSOCIATION WITH MATTER BY WHICH ALONE THEY CAN MANIFEST THEMSELVES HERE AND NOW AND THAT PERSONALITY PERSISTS BEYOND BODILY DEATH.

Some Circulation!

YOU wouldn't believe it—no one does until he learns by actual experience—that the circulation of hot air produced by the "little furnace" in the Estate Hot Storm is as powerful as you find in the ordinary furnace.

But just try to hold your hand over the discharge ports of an Estate Hot Storm when it's fired up full, and you'll be quickly convinced.

Estate Hot Storm—the heating stove with a "little furnace" in it works like a furnace because it's built like one. Air drawn into the "little furnace" through pipes on both sides of the stove, is heated to a very high temperature, and then discharged from the top of the stove, either into the room in which the stove sets, or into a pipe to conduct the heat to the upper floor.

This distinctive feature of the Estate Hot Storm's construction should be reason enough for you to give this stove the preference, but there are other reasons almost throughout the life of the stove, the Estate Tubular Hot Blast Attachment gets out of the fuel every atom of heat that's in it; the Estate Double Strength Single Fire Pot, the strongest, longest-lived, most powerful and economical heater that has ever been built.

Make up your mind to "Own an Estate" this season and make it an Estate Hot Storm—the stove with a "little furnace" in it. We'll be glad to explain the construction to you at any time.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Postmaster General Burleson has decided to favor the covering under the civil service of all second and third-class postmasters. He is assured of the support of President Wilson for this policy. The question that is engaging the attention of the postmaster general now is whether the classification of these offices can be effected simply through an executive order by the president. Mr. Burleson's legal advisers are inclined to the opinion that action by congress will be necessary to accomplish the reform. Nearly 8,000 postmaster positions, carrying salaries aggregating $13,000,000, will be placed under the operation of the merit system.

Ex-President Whacks Right Strenuously In Criticisms

"I never said that I would refuse to run the risk of shedding a drop of blood to protect American property. That doctrine, if carried out logically would mean that no policeman ought ever to arrest a burglar or pickpocket, whereas interference with them undoubtedly means incurring the risk of bloodshed. Nor did I say that all American citizens should leave the country, abandoning their property to the good will of the contending factions. My position was that if Americans had a right to be in a country they could stay there, and every resource of the government would be exhausted to protect them. Nor did I refuse to act at all until foreign powers acted, nor either ask or accept their co-operation in action, still less did I follow a course which was certain to produce anarchy and make existing conditions worse so as to force intervention."

Many of the 2,300 diners who overflowed the garden and scrambled for places among the tables and sides of the theater didn't hear Mr. Roosevelt tell how much better they managed ticklish foreign situations in his day nor did they hear him include Mr. Taft's administration as one of the feeble ones when he said:

"Unfortunately, for the last four years and a half the attitude of both the old parties in foreign affairs has been discreditable to our national self-respect and to our ability to serve either our own true interests or the true interests of the foreign powers. Continuing, Mr. Roosevelt said: "This movement will never go back and whatever may betide in the future, of one thing the disciples of an easy opportunism may rest assured, I will never abandon the principles to which we Progressives have pledged ourselves and I will never abandon the men and women who drew around me to battle for these principles."

DEER PLENTIFUL AS SEASON NEARS

State Wide Open Season Policy
In Massachusetts.

MANY HUNTERS EXPECTED.

Animals About as Approachable as Cows in a Pasture—Sportsmen's Carnival Expected—Hunters Must Secure Licenses and Report to Game Warden Every Time a Deer Is Killed.

Springfield, Mass.—The state wide open season for deer in the week beginning Nov. 17 will be a notable hunters' carnival. Deer have been rigidly protected in Massachusetts, and the first open season, three years ago, was restricted to the five western counties. In spite of three open seasons deer are now more numerous in the hill towns than at the time of the Revolutionary war, in which period they were unprotected. Farmers' complaints of the depredations of deer were deftly turned to advantage by hunters as an argument for a state wide open season, which will be given a trial this fall.

The greater part of the 10,000 or more deer in the state are in the five western counties, but in the open season, when the woods and hills resound with the report of firearms, the frightened animals flee eastward in droves. This year the flight of the deer, unless it be over the borders of another state, will not avail, and it is expected that the slaughter will be much greater than last year, when about 1,000 deer were killed.

The law requires that all hunters shall be licensed and that a report shall be made to the fish and game commission of every deer killed. The penalty is so severe that the provisions are generally observed.

Notwithstanding that deer in parts of Massachusetts are almost as approachable as cows in a pasture, and in many towns by the exercise of a little patience they can be prevailed upon to eat from one's hand, the open season has a fascination for thousands of hunters. In Springfield alone last year more than one thousand hunters' licenses were issued. This year a small army of hunters from Boston and other cities in the eastern part of the state will participate, not to mention New York and Philadelphia hunters, a majority of whom are stock brokers. Game wardens are of the opinion that there will be a hunter for nearly every deer, and that when the 1914 legislature convenes the surplus deer population will be the least of its troubles.

The principal restrictions of the open season are that no hunter shall kill more than one deer, that the meat shall not be resold, that there shall be no resort either to traps or snare traps and that no weapon other than a shotgun shall be used. To minimize the danger which attends the presence of so many hunters in the woods a special statute has been passed which prohibits hunting for birds or quadrupeds with rifles, pistols or revolvers during the open season for deer. In former years a large number of deer hunters have used rifles, and if detected would insist that the deer was killed accidentally. The new law eliminates this excuse.

Candor compels the statement that deer hunters are guilty in too many instances of unseemly depredations, and the utter disregard of the rights of others by a comparatively few hunters has led to the posting of thousands of acres of land by indignant farmers.

Some idea of the increase in the number of deer in Massachusetts may be gained from the damages which the state has been called upon to pay to farmers. As it is unlawful to kill deer except under great provocation, the state has found it necessary to compensate farmers for damage to orchards, gardens and growing crops. In 1903 the state paid $237 to settle deer damage claims. In 1908 the amount had risen to $4,370. Last year Massachusetts farmers collected $10,000 for the depredations of deer.

OHIO HAPPENINGS

Doings of the W. C. T. U.

Xenia, O., Oct. 4.—The W. C. T. U. convention in session here adopted resolutions that welcomed the agitation toward better laws relating to marriage, the "better babies" movement, recommended simplicity in the apparel of school children, protested against a double standard of morals, against the segregation of vice, approved the action of Secretary A. P. Sandies in removing objectionable features from the state fair grounds, advocated beginning at once an active campaign for enfranchisement of women, and urging agitation against the anti-shipping bill and the small legislature.

Italian's Home Dynamited.
Marion, O., Oct. 4.—Mystery surrounds the dynamiting of the little home of Nundo Merlo 45, successful Italian merchant. The explosion wrecked his home, threw Merlo, his wife and two children out of bed, covering them with debris, but miraculously did not injure them or the three other occupants of the house. The police suspect Black Hand agents.

Boys Stabs Girl in Back.
Salem, O., Oct. 4.—Gertrude Vanski, 11, was stabbed in the back with a pocketknife by Dayton Howell, 12, as they were marching out from school at Columbiana. The little girl sustained a deep wound and is in a serious condition.

CHOCOLATE AS A FOOD.

It Should Be Eaten After and Never Before Meals.

Chocolate is one of the most wholesome of foods. But it should be reserved for eating after meals. Nothing can be worse than chocolate eaten just before a meal, for then it ruins the appetite. Chocolate should consist of equal parts of sugar and cocoa. When it contains as most of that sold in the cheap candy stores does, more sugar than cocoa it loses much of its real food value.

Koenig, the great German chemist, who has done so much to enlighten the world on the value of foods by publishing his analysis of them, says that chocolate contains 6.27 per cent of protein, 62 per cent of theobromine, 21.20 per cent of fat, 1.39 per cent of tartaric acid, 53.70 per cent of sugar, 4.67 per cent of starch, 1.67 per cent of cellulose and 5.59 per cent of other carbohydrates. Therefore it is highly nutritive.

Athletes, polar explorers and mountain climbers know this well. In the Swiss Alps it is usual to carry chocolate in the pocket and to eat a little of it whenever the climbers pause for a rest. Bitter chocolate is fattening and should therefore be eschewed by those who have a tendency to too great corpulence. It is an ideal addition to the diet of a vegetarian.

Chocolate and cocoa are almost as stimulating as coffee and tea, but have none of the injurious effects upon the nervous system which are for many people the great drawbacks of these drinks.

Chocolate is best when made over a fire and allowed to stand.—New York World

Coroner's Jury Renders Verdict In Case of Anna Aumuller.

New York, Oct. 4.—The coroner's jury which decided the case of Hans Schmidt charged with the murder of Anna Aumuller, included Theodore Shonts and Vincent Astor. After briefly outlining the case, Assistant District Attorney Murphy called to the stand several witnesses. At the conclusion of the testimony the coroner summed up the evidence and the jury retired. They were out about 15 minutes. They found that the woman had come to her death at the hands of Schmidt. The prisoner became excited during the proceedings and at one point hurled his rosary and some coins at a group of spectators.

NO TRACE FOUND OF BOLD BURGLARS

So far no arrests have been made in connection with the burglary of the Ford Hardware store Thursday night, and there is little hope of landing the crooks who performed the work.

One man recalls having seen a buggy turn into the alley from the north shortly after midnight on the night of the burglary. The rig was traveling with more than ordinary speed, he said.

It is claimed that some two weeks ago someone entered the store but was evidently frightened away before they succeeded in securing what they were after.

At that time they gained admittance through the basement and had they not been interrupted the guns and knives would undoubtedly have been stolen at that time.

WEB OF EVIDENCE TIGHTENS ABOUT MAN WHO IS LYING IN HOSPITAL SERIOUSLY WOUNDED

Horse Stealing, Burglary and Carrying Deadly Weapons are Some of the Charges Which Loom up on Horizon.

TUDOR STILL REFUSES TO TELL STRAIGHT STORY.

Residents of Community in Which Shooting Occurred Describe Tudor and Companion, Claiming Man Who Did the Shooting Wore Trousers Similar to Those Worn by Tudor—Stolen Horse and Buggy Returned to Owner.

Paul Tudor, the man who was brought to the Hodson hospital Wednesday night, suffering from an ugly bullet wound in his shoulder, is still confined to his bed in the hospital and pleuro pneumonia is developing as a result of the bullet penetrating his lung. It has not been ascertained where the bullet rests, and the wound may yet prove fatal.

Although repeatedly put through the "third degree" Tudor still sticks to his first story, denying all knowledge of who the man was who shot him, other than that the fellow was hobnobbing with him.

The web of evidence has drawn still tighter about the fellow by the finding of a horse and buggy near the scene of the shooting, and the outfit was readily identified as the property of Miss Sadie Clyburn, of Greenfield. The horse and buggy were stolen from Miss Clyburn Wednesday night, when a robbery was pulled off in Greenfield and an attempt made to break open the B. & O. station at that point.

The men were described as wearing blue overalls and both wore masks. Tudor disclaims all knowledge of the stolen property found near the place where the shooting occurred, and when informed that the stolen goods had been found, he said he did not know how they could have gotten there unless his unknown companion "planted" them. Tudor seemed familiar with the word "planted" in reference to hiding stolen goods.

Persons residing in the neighborhood saw the two men the day the shooting took place, and their description exactly fit the way Tudor was dressed and the way the two men were dressed who burglarized the Greenfield store and attempted to rob the station.

Tudor's description of his companion is believed to be false from beginning to end.

Following the shooting a man, supposed to have been Tudor's companion, stayed over night on the Arehart farm, obtaining lodging under the pretext that he was looking for corn husking. Watching his opportunity he disappeared early the following morning.

The trousers worn by Tudor have been identified as those stolen from the Greenfield store, and little by little the web of evidence is tightening about him.

As the man has served two terms in the State Reformatory, according to reports from Greenfield, the police are of the opinion that they had landed a very bad character, and believe it is only a question of time until his burglar companion is run to earth.

Tudor may be removed to the county jail owing to the crowded condition of the hospital.

GOOD GAME SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY

If the weather man is propitious tomorrow a very large crowd is expected to congregate on the baseball grounds as within all probability the last Sunday game of the year will be played.

The Chillicothe State League team, which won second place in the State League this year, will be the Athletics' opponents.

Manager Noon has selected Linson to do the pitching and Hagerty will be behind the bat, saving Ren for the Cincinnati Reds next Wednesday. Otherwise Washington's line-up will be the same as before.

Play called promptly at 2:30.

There will be special music and the entire service will be one to strongly appeal to young people. Everybody is cordially invited.

BRILLIANT RECEPTION HONORS NEW PASTOR

The most brilliant and beautiful reception ever held in the Presbyterian church was tendered by the ladies of the Guild to the new pastor, Rev. William Boynton Gage and Mrs. Gage Friday evening.

The large auditorium and adjoining Sunday school room glowed with autumn beauty. Bright hued autumn leaves masked gallery rails and chancel; immense bunches of golden rod, gardenias of rich dahlias, a tall flower vase of rare Japanese anemones were arranged with consummate skill.

Attracting considerable attention was an exquisite night blooming cereus, its waxy flower the climax of a year's growth, and thoughtfully sent to the church by Mrs. J. H. Allen, of N. Main street.

Between four and five hundred people, representatives from other churches mingling with members of the Presbyterian congregation, extended cordial words of welcome to the new pastor and his charming wife who responded with a spontaneity which fully reciprocated their cordiality.

Receiving with Rev. and Mrs. Gage were the two senior elders, Messrs. J. W. Rothrock and J. T. Tuttle and their wives. The other elders and deacons and their wives acted as a special reception committee and assisted in the entertaining.

The reception was marked by its delightful sociability, many lingering quite late in the evening. Music added no little to its pleasure. Miss Lillian Davis gave artistic interpretation to difficult organ solos, and Misses Ruth Reid and Edith Worthington, two talented young pianists, were recalled again and again after brilliant duets.

The basement dining room had been converted into an inviting tea room. Mrs. R. S. Quinn and Mrs. Martin Grove pouring at a pretty tea table, adorned with clusters of pink and white roses.

A bevy of attractive young girls served a dainty refreshment.

Arrangements were in the hands of the entertaining committee, Mrs. H. Ben Ervin, Mrs. George Jackson and Mrs. Austin E. Hopkins. Miss Marie Kessler had the elaborate decorating in charge.

MUING THE BRIDE.

Early Saxon Customs and the Advent of the Flowing Veil.

In the old days, as now, the bride generally dressed in white. From early Saxon times down to the eighteenth century a bride of the poorer classes came to the wedding arrayed in a plain white robe as a public warning that since she brought nothing to the marriage her husband was not responsible for her debts.

Brides soon began to add some little touch of color. Blue was for constancy and green for youth, but in some places these might not be used because of feuds between families having these tints in their liveries. Yellow might not be worn, as it stood for jealousy; golden might not, as it meant avarice.

The Anglo-Saxon bride went to the wedding with her hair hanging loose as a sign of freedom, but upon reaching her new home immediately bound it up as a sign of submission. In the days of Shakespeare the veil began to take the place of the flowing tresses, but this, however, was not original; with the British, for centuries earlier the Roman and Hebrew brides had worn yellow veils, while the early Christians of southern Europe had enveloped both man and wife in one large cloth.

Whatever was lacking, however, in gorgeousness of dress was compensated among all the nations by the profusion of flowers chosen for their significance. "Uncle Remus" Magazine.

The Chicago Historical society has a letter in which is described how Stephen A. Douglas was rescued from a fiery death on the day of his birth. The letter was written by Horatio L. Wait, master in chancery of the circuit court. John Conant, one of Wait's family ancestors, who lived next door to the Douglas home in Brandon, Vt., saved Douglas' life.

"The morning Douglas was born," the letter says, "John Conant went to the Douglas house, and as he entered the room Douglas' father was sitting in an armchair before an open fireplace with the infant in his arms. Just as Conant entered the father died suddenly from apoplexy. The infant rolled down into the fireplace, and Conant snatched him from the fire."

DUNCAN W. PECK'S TALE
OPENED WAY FOR SULZER
TO TELL LIFE STORY

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Duncan W. Peck, state superintendent of roads, was one of the important witnesses in the Sulzer impeachment trial. It was he who testified that he had given Sulzer $500 for campaign purposes, and when he went to the governor about it before the trial began Sulzer said, "Forget it, like I shall do." Peck's testimony was very damaging to the impeached governor and paved the way for Sulzer's personal appearance on the stand to deny the story.

Very Unusual.

"You newspaper fellows are ordinarily hard pressed for funds, are you not?" asked the genial stranger.

Our natural pride forbade us to agree with this outsider's conclusion. So we said:

"Why—er—not necessarily. What makes you think so?"

"I'll tell you. I am acquainted with a member of your profession, and a fine chap he is too. The other day I wanted to talk to him, so I called him up on the phone and asked him if he would lunch with me. He accepted, and at the appointed hour we sat at the table. I opened the conversation thus:

"Well, what's the news? Anything unusual in your line?"

"Yes," answered the reporter—"this!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer

COLUMBUS LOSES AND NEXT M. E. CONFERENCE COMES TO THIS CITY

Spirited Contest Lasting Nearly Three Hours Results in Victory by 107 to 65 Vote of the Conference.

REV. F. E. ROSS CARRIES THE DAY AT CHILlicothe.

Washington Will Entertain Some 300 Ministers at Next Session of the Ohio Methodist Episcopal Conference.

After a spirited contest lasting nearly three hours, the Ohio M. E. conference in session at Chillicothe this morning voted to hold the 103rd annual session in this city next year.

Columbus had a number of delegates who urged the Conference to come to that city, and for a time it looked like the Buckeye capital would defeat the capital of "Little Bristle," but Washington triumphed when Rev. F. E. Ross made a final eloquent appeal which carried the Conference off its feet and when the vote was taken it stood 107 for the capital of "Little Bristle" and 65 for the capital of Ohio.

As a result of the vote this city will next year entertain some 300 ministers during the 103rd annual Conference.

The contest for securing the next conference was one of the most spirited in recent years.

Dayton, O.—"Do you, Louis Motzel?" "Number please." "Take Florence Igon?" "They don't answer."

Louis Motzel and Florence Igon had their troubles getting married over the telephone here, but Dan Cupid finally got the phone plugs in their proper places on the switchboard, and Squire Koehne was able to finish the ceremony.

Motzel and Miss Igon had found two magistrates absent from their offices, and when they reached the office of Koehne, only to find him gone, they located him at a construction camp three miles from the city, and he readily consented to tie the knot by phone.

PACIFIC DRYDOCK.

Work to Be Resumed Shortly Is Opinion in Washington.

Washington—Work upon the giant drydock at Pearl Harbor, the site of the great naval base the United States is establishing in the Pacific, probably will be resumed in the near future.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels announced that Alfred Noble of New York, the engineering specialist retained to render an opinion as to the advisability of going ahead with the construction of the dock, has reported that the project is quite feasible.

The Pearl Harbor drydock is to cost several million dollars, according to estimates. Work on the dock was well advanced when the coral foundation of the dock yielded to water pressure from below and caused an upheaval of the floor and walls, practically ruining all that had been done.

Custard.

Concerning custard, or "custard," as it was formerly called, it was a common joke at civic feasts in England in the olden time to place an enormous custard in the middle of the table, into which at some stage of the proceedings the clown unexpectedly jumped. Ben Jonson uses the term "custard leap" of one who "in fall of a sheriff's dinner" took "his almain leap into a custard" to "make my lady's mykeros" and her sisters laugh all their hoods over their shoulders.

CONDEMNED TO DIE, CONDUCTS BUSINESS

Remarkable Fortitude of Frank, Awaiting Death.

Atlanta, Ga.—Leo M. Frank, sentenced to be hanged Oct. 10 for the murder of Mary Phagan, continues to manage in jail the affairs of the National Pencil company, of which he was superintendent and at whose plant the girl was killed. However, he will not be hanged Oct. 10 because the motion for a new trial will be heard, and if the decision is adverse the case will be carried to the supreme court. It may be a year before his fate is definitely determined.

His wife has visited him daily since the end of the trial and has assisted him in going over the mass of testimony. When at the trial Solicitor Dorsey declared she had never gone to the police station to see him and cited the fact to the jury as an indication that she knew Frank was guilty she leaned forward in an excited protest, but under the law she could not testify. She is determined in the event of a new trial—and she is confident one is coming—to in some way show that she never for a moment doubted her husband's innocence.

Mrs. Rea Frank, his mother, joined in the jail conferences for awhile, but finally she was obliged to return to Brooklyn, where her aged husband is critically ill. She expects to return when argument is made for a new trial before Judge Roan.

Solicitor Dorsey is directing the work of detectives who are trying to find new evidence to strengthen the case of the state should a new trial be ordered.

TRUST ACTION NEXT SESSION.

President Then Will Recommend Strengthening of Sherman Law.

Washington.—There will be no anti-trust legislation at this extra session of congress. It was stated on the highest authority. President Wilson will recommend to congress soon after the beginning of the regular session in December the strengthening of the Sherman law.

Between now and then he and his advisers will go over the Sherman law, dig into the history of its operation and make a careful study of what has been done with the law and its effect on business. It became known that the president will have before him the anti-trust laws of New Jersey, known as "the seven sisters," acts enacted during the last year of Mr. Wilson's administration as governor of that state.

GEM MESSAGE BY PIGEON.

Carrier Flies From Vessel to Shore, Valuables Being Found.

Philadelphia.—When she discovered that she had left valuable jewelry in a bag at a hotel Mrs. Daniel H. Ferguson, on the British steamer Glenal, outside the Delaware capes, liberated a carrier pigeon, which returned to the home city on the Ferguson farm. Ferguson, at Mendenhall, Pa., with a message telling of the loss. The hotel was communicated with and the jewelry was obtained and put in the office safe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson started for New Castle, New Brunswick, and left one bag to be stored in the baggage room of the hotel until their return. Through a mistake the jewel box was placed in the bag. The pigeon that carried the message was being taken with others by Mr. Ferguson to friends in New Brunswick.

Oldest Daughters of Czar of Russia Are Among The Interesting Young People of World's Royalty.

These two young women, hardly out of girlhood, are among the world's interesting young people. All Europe wonders what prank of fate Dan Cupid is going to play upon them. They are the Grand Duchess Olga, aged eight, eldest daughter of the czar and czarina of Russia, and the Grand Duchess Tatiana, aged sixteen, the second eldest daughter. Rumor has had Princess Olga engaged more than once, but nothing authentic was ever announced until the recent report gained wide credence that she would be engaged to Prince Charles of Roumania.

LITERARY BALLPLAYERS CAUSE SOME DEBATE

ONE WAY OUT OF IT

Ball Players Must Write Their Own Stories of the Games.

New York, Oct. 4.—When the national baseball commission meets here Monday to arrange final details for the world series, Ban Johnson, president of the American league, says he will offer a solution of the trouble over "player-authors." Johnson's plan is to allow players to live up to their contracts made with newspapers if they will dictate their "stories" to stenographers. Two copies of a story will be made, one to be retained by the commission and the other to be sent to the publication engaging the player's services.

If the "story" appears in print the next day without material changes Johnson says that the writer of it will not be interfered with. But with players who simply sell the use of their names while regular baseball reporters write their copy, Johnson states that the offenders will be barred from the series after the first appearance of their alleged yarns.

Elitz's garage. They were held to the grand jury. The police are looking for two girls said to have been with the men.

Fromme May Do the Relief Act In World's Series if Giant Regulars Fail

New York, Oct. 4.—Arthur Fromme, one of the new members of McGraw's pitching staff, has about broken even on the number of games he has won and lost this season. Fromme may figure as a relief twirler in the world's series, but will not be used if the regular boxmen can hold their own against the Athletics. Fromme saw the light of the baseball day in Quincy, Ill., in 1905, and his first National league appearance was with the St. Louis team in 1907. He played there two years and then went to Cincinnati, where he remained until this year, when he figured in a trade which brought him to the Giants.
